

Brown University Department of Comparative Literature

Alani Hicks-Bartlett

Departments of French Studies and Hispanic Studies, and the Program in Medieval Studies

Brown University

“Epic Posturing: Bodies, Embellishment, and the Early Modern Turn”

Alani Hicks-Bartlett is a Presidential Diversity Postdoctoral Fellow in the Departments of French Studies and Hispanic Studies, and the Program in Medieval Studies. Her research interests include the querelle des femmes, fabliaux, gender and violence in Medieval and Early Modern texts, marriage in Early Modern drama, classical exemplarity in Medieval and Early Modern literature, and the development of the love lyric. Her current projects focus on gender and race in Medieval French literature, representations of disability in Medieval and Early Modern prose compositions, and the Medieval and Early Modern complaint tradition.

Tuesday

Nov. 19, 2019

5:30 pm

Maddock Alumni Center

Brian Room

38 Brown Street

Free and open to the public.

Wine and cheese reception to follow.

BROWN